(14) lost his wife and daughter, in an attempt to help President Hwang Hyung Jin, is dispatched to the Yeosu Naval Base and tasked with stopping the United States' missile base. As Jung Seok attempts to reach the base by boat, he accidentally activates a nuclear submarine which is heading towards Yeosu. However, he is able to outrun the submarine and rendezvous with the U.S. submarine and the two are able to escape. The submarine is caught by the South Korean Navy and is damaged. Jung Seok is able to make his way to the Yeosu Naval Base and stop the South Korean missile attacks on the missile base. The North Korean Army arrive and force Jung Seok to surrender. He is then taken prisoner and brought back to the army base where he learns that Hwang Hyung Jin, the president, was kidnapped by the North Korean Army. As Jung Seok tries to find out what the purpose of the North Korean Army's visit is, he learns that Hwang Hyung Jin has discovered the location of the other American base in the Korean peninsula and also has found out the connection of the North Korean Army to it. The North Korean Army have also discovered this information and their ships are heading towards Yeosu with orders to kill Jung Seok and President Hwang Hyung Jin. As Jung Seok tries to find a way to escape from the North Korean Army and reach the U.S. submarine, he is able to break free and escape the base. Once he escapes, he returns to Yeosu Naval Base and rescues President Hwang Hyung Jin. In a last attempt to stop the South Korean Navy's missile attacks on the base, Jung Seok is able to detonate an EMP bomb on the South Korean missile base. As the North Korean Army's forces arrive in Yeosu, Jung Seok and President Hwang Hyung Jin escape to the U.S. submarine and wait for rescue. As the South Korean Navy forces arrives at the base, the North Korean Army is destroyed by the EMP bomb and the submarine crew is able to rescue Jung Seok and President Hwang Hyung Jin.
